Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

GIRAFFE NEWS

"Before I turn in for the night, as people say, I do wish we could do something about those who make jokes," said young Mr. Giraffe.

"What do you object to about jokes?" asked young Mrs. Giraffe. "For I can tell from the way you speak that you do object."

"I feel we should be thankful that we're not asked to make up jokes. Gracious, it would be hard. We have small brains and the effort would be too much."

"And the joke wouldn't be funny. I feel sure of that. A joke which isn't funny can't be a joke."

"I'm not so sure about that," said young Mr. Giraffe. "Lots of jokes I hear aren't funny and yet they're laughed at a little, anyway. I'm glad I'm not a joke. A joke is treated too often as a joke should not be treated."

"You talk as though a joke were a person," said young Mrs. Giraffe. "A joke can't feel."

"That's so," agreed young Mr. Giraffe, "and a lucky thing it is for a joke that it can't, or it would often have its feelings hurt."

"But what I object to is the way they use the old, old joke (as they call it) again and again about a giraffe and a possible sore throat."

"Because we have long necks they like to think it is funny to think of how long a sore throat we might have. Oh, the joke is so old."

"I hear people try to pretend it is new as they say something about sore throats and us as they stand before us here in the zoo."

"I'm sure that joke must have first come in when the first giraffe did. The joke would have white hair and few teeth by now if it were an alive object. Perhaps that is why a joke can't be alive. It doubtless was once, but it couldn't stand the strain."

"But I don't suppose I can do anything about it. Still, I would like to say that they never hear me laugh at their so-called jokes. I'm not going to pretend I think they're funny when they're not."

"Another person may have to do that to be polite, but not the giraffe. I'm lucky to be a giraffe, a giraffe who doesn't have to be so polite as to laugh at old, worn-out jokes."

"Well, we're lucky in that way," said Mrs. Giraffe, "even if we're not lucky in being the subject of their jokes. But then it doesn't ever hurt us. We can eat our clover hay and barley just as happily."

"And we really handle our great height remarkably well," said Mr. Giraffe. "People don't seem to realize that."

"If they were tall as we are I don't believe they would do nearly so well. They would be really awkward."

"Of course we must have some good points for when it comes to brains we haven't as many or as much as the camels. We're about as stupid as any creatures to be seen—or heard."

What a Lucky Giraffe She Was.

"We can't remember anything, we don't think, our ideas are not much."

But some time after this a little young giraffe son came to the zoo and the parents felt different; then, they did not think they were without thoughts!

Oh, yes! For Mother Giraffe had many thoughts and they were all loving ones.

She knew how rare and wonderful a thing it was to think of a baby giraffe born in a zoo.

And all her thoughts were for her baby. The baby was a pretty, good-sized baby, but to Mother Giraffe he was just as cunning and small as he could be—and from the way she looked at size, of course he was!

What a lucky Giraffe she was and every one knew that, too, for they came and took her picture and the picture of her son and they not only took one but many.

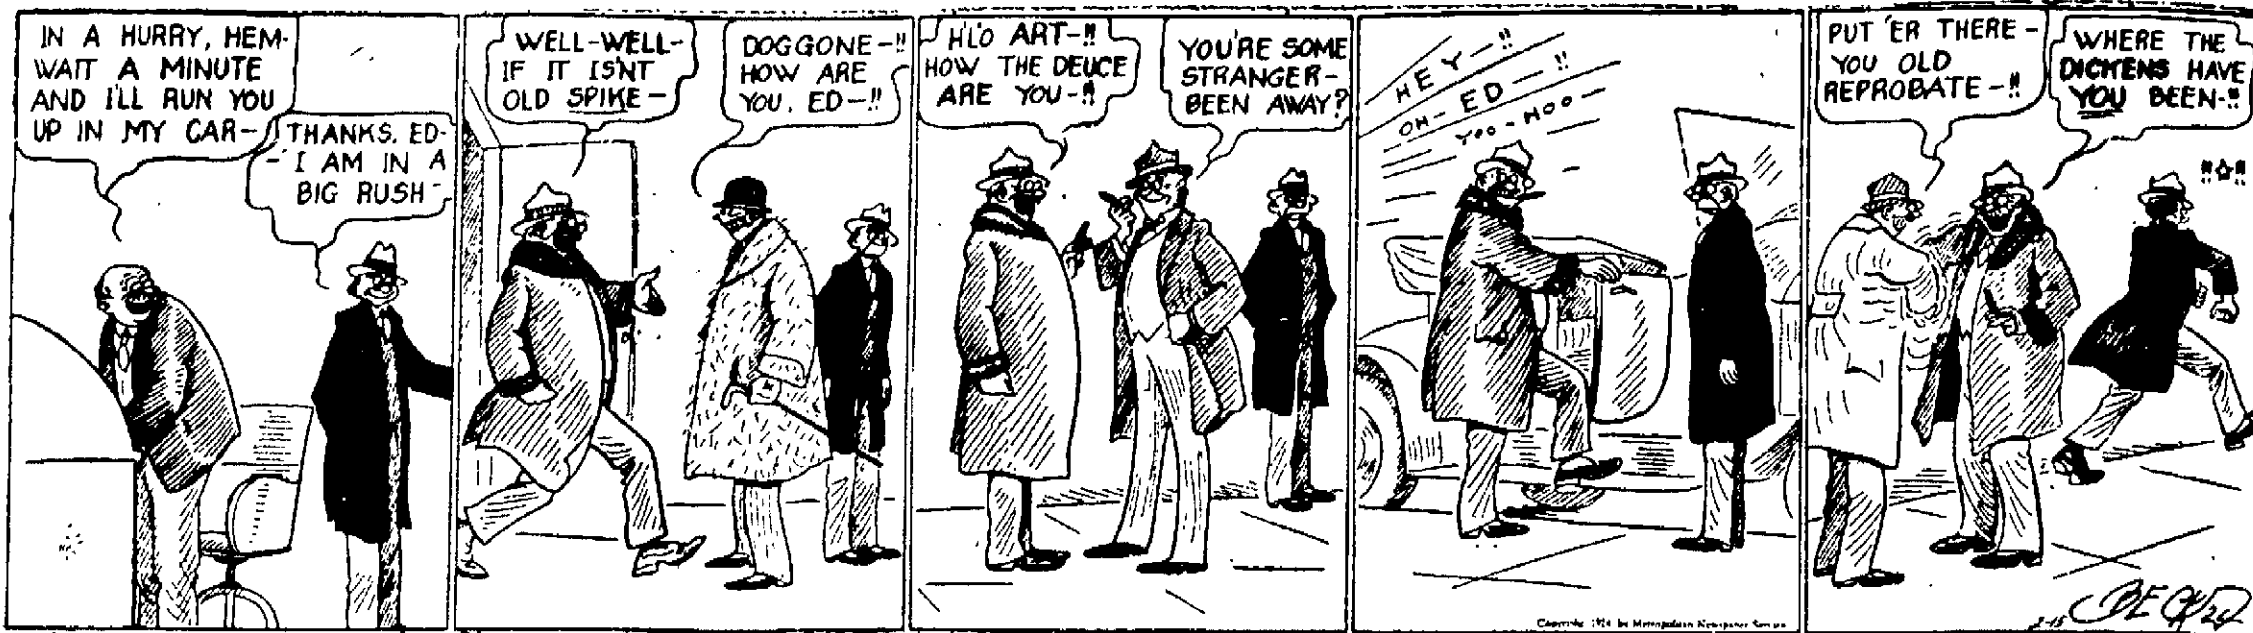

Oh, yes, she was lucky and she was proud of the great honor. And her one thought was that she hoped this unusual, fine Giraffe son would continue to grow strong so as to be a comfort to his parents in their Giraffe old age.

The KITCHEN CABINET

(© 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

The best way to ventilate a house is to turn yourself out of doors frequently. A child should never be kept in the house more than an hour at a stretch, an adult not more than three, unless asleep.—Woods Hutchinson.

SOME COMPANY DISHES

A simple salad which is easy to prepare and is usually easy to procure is as follows: Shred a hard head of cabbage very fine and drop into cold water to become crisp. Drain, add salt and sprinkle well with sugar, then add some sharp vinegar and enough thick cream to make a good dressing.

Chili Con Carne.—Take a can of kidney beans or half a pound of the red chili beans until tender. Just before the beans are soft add one onion and a clove of garlic chopped fine. There should be about three pints of water in the beans. Add a tablespoonful or more of chili powder, depending upon how hot you like the chili, or add a few stewed chopped chili peppers and a teaspoonful of salt. Chop a pound of beef; let it cook until all the fat is tried out, remove the scraps and add a pound and a half of hamburger steak. Stir constantly for a few minutes, then add the beans and cook slowly for several hours.

Chestnut Dainty.—Take one pound of chestnuts, one cupful of cream, one-half pound of sugar, one lemon, half a tablespoonful of lemon extract, a few drops of red coloring and some pink and white wafers. Cut a slit across the top of each chestnut and put them to cook in boiling water to cover for five minutes, then peel them. Put two cupfuls of water into a pan with the sugar and the thinly pared lemon rind; bring to the boiling point, add the nuts and cook them until tender. Take out of the syrup, pound and rub them through a sieve. Whip the cream and add the chestnut puree. Sweeten to taste, adding coloring and flavor. Heap in a glass dish and arrange the pink and white candies around the edge.

Roast Pig.—A roast pig should be at least six weeks old. After being carefully cleaned and dried it may be stuffed with any desired filling. After filling rub the pig with melted butter, sprinkle with flour, salt and pepper, and roast, basting often. Roast in a moderate oven two to three hours.

Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Lasher, Lewis Lasher, Frank Menshim, John Clark, Leland Lasher, Eva Lasher, Lela Deitz, Alfred Lasher and Burnett Freer. Moire Ribbon to Trim Marine-Blue Serge

Paris supplies thousands of variations on the blue serge theme, that all may have something different. This pattern is of marine-blue serge, trimmed with moire ribbon in a light, harmonizing shade.

Save Stocking Legs for Repairing Others

It sometimes happens that a pair of stockings will suddenly show a rawing hole, or a heel will have been ended until it becomes uncomfortable to wear. If the rest of the stocking is good, a very neat and comfortable job can be made by "patching" in place of depending wholly upon darning. Patching is often so clumsy, and done that the method has fallen into disrepute. But for a good-looking hole this method will be found excellent.

Take a piece of good stocking material salvaged from the unworn part of another pair of stockings. In fact, it is a good plan to have a box or small basket of stocking legs which can be used for repairs.

This is the method of procedure: Turn the stocking wrong side out, and at a darting ball into it. Now cut a patch which will cover the worn place, do not make the mistake of cutting the stocking itself, even if there is a tiny darn there for the cut edges all stretch. Take a needleful of mended shading cotton and fasten the patch where it ought to be. This is the way to do it.

First put in a pin or two to hold it in place. Then overcast the patch around the edge. Do not turn the edge under. This will fasten the attached piece firmly in place, and there will be no uncomfortable ridge. This will only take a few minutes. The next step is to turn the stocking right side out. The clumsy darn can now be cut away, or if there is a hole it can be mended quickly. The way to do this is to darn the edge of the stocking from flat to the patch. Sometimes it is advisable to run the darning thread right through the patch, using it as filling. The repair is quickly made, lasts as long as new, and is neat on both the right and the wrong side. Here the repair is made in silk stocking cutting should be avoided, as this uses the stitches to run.

Little Fashion Hints for Women Who Care

Little golden tassels made of heavy cord are worn all over some of the new cloaks, inside and out.

The little black hat is very much in vogue again in Paris. It is often of tulle and its trimming is usually silver like ribbon.

For wear with the tailored costume as so much favored in London the pulka blouse is of thin silk in a wide, semi-Persian pattern of light colors with deep V neck.

Among the new corsets shown in New York is a combination brassiere and step in envelope. It can take the place of either undervest or union suit and it can be worn outside the under-vest.

Tellow of the lovely buttercup shade is combined with silver in a sumptuous brocade now used for linings. The brocade is in panels or ruffles, the rest of the garment being in clear yellow georgette.

The display of novelties in which aluminum beads are used emphasizes the fact that this is a metal season. In one very exclusive shop are found some lately imported bags in which aluminum beads are sewn on the net to form a soft gray foundation.

An intriguing absurdity is a bracelet of tiny silk flowers, wired to close about the wrist, holding a handkerchief of chiffon, printed or hand-painted in delicate shades. These relieve the evening bag or vanity case of one small burden, and in the parlance of a major shopkeeper, are "more for show than for to blow."

Like Peasant Blouse.

Slipper sweaters of Shenando wool are extremely tailored in appearance. They only decorative touch is the collar and cuffs in a contrasting weave and color. They hang perfectly straight, like a peasant blouse.

Chinch Bugs Destructive.

Fully $40,000,000 worth of wheat, corn, oats, grain, sorghums and broom-corn is destroyed annually by chinch bugs, which can withstand most climatic conditions, fungus diseases and drastic enemies.

KINGSTON, N. Y., FEB. 15, 1924.

Lord Bledisloe has decided to join the Labor party, but is hardly expecting to be lonesome. Premier Ramsay MacDonald put three lords and a baronet in his Cabinet to begin with and has asked the King to create three of its members barons.

That book on "how to be happy though married" is hardly needed by the Brooklyn couple who at their recent sixtieth wedding anniversary smilingly confessed that they are "just as much sweethearts now" as they were three score years ago.

Henry Ford thinks that permanent peace can be secured merely by inducing all the peoples of the world to learn English. And that Governor of Porto Rico who got into so much trouble seemed to think that all the Porto Ricans needed was to learn how things were done in the Middle West.

A baronet has been defined as a person who has ceased to be a gentleman without becoming a nobleman. It would be interesting to know just where the same satirist would place Lieut.-Col. Sir Broderick Hartwell, who is reported to be advertising his fourth run-running cruise with a promise of 20 per cent profits.

GOVERNMENT BY GABFEST.

At the request of Palmer Canfield, federal prohibition director for this state, Governor Smith has called a conference of state, county, city and village officials in Albany next Wednesday evening to consider and discuss the program adopted by the conferences of governors held last October. This program calls for conferences of the kind to be held in Albany, conferences that might be of some value if the men who attend them had the courage to speak the truth. But if the conference of governors and the other conferences on prohibition enforcement that have been held are to be initiated, basic facts will be ignored and the conference will consist of a series of pleas by gentlemen distinguished mainly for their verbosity.

At none of the conferences thus far held has the basic reason for failure to enforce the Volstead Law been touched upon, which is that the law itself is a farce, oppressive, meddlesome, and not confined, as it should be, to enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment. The more carefully the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Law are studied the more apparent becomes the fact that the Volstead Law is loaded with provisions neither required nor justified by the amendment. This fact was apparent to the legislature of the state of New York a year ago and moved the legislature to the repeal of the Mulan-Gage Law, which was practically a duplication of the Volstead Law. By this repeal the state of New York withdrew its approval of an unjust perversion of the Eighteenth Amendment and registered its protest.

The Volstead Law is an example of the lengths to which grossly intemperate men and women—intemperate in thought, acts and words—will go in order to enforce their desires to control the lives of others. It is also an example of the cowardice of a majority that permits itself to be ruled by a noisy, persistent, untruthful minority of zealots who are skilled in the use of invective and practice the theory that any means are justified in attaining an end that they have decided to be holy.

The Volstead Law is not enforced because it is a bad law, a law that repels respect and invites contempt because of the needless tyranny it is designed to bring into existence. It has set back the orderly progress of temperance many years and brought into being a habit of law-breaking and of private decision as to whether law should be obeyed or violated that grows more demoralizing every day.

All this is the consequence of permitting intemperate bigots to attempt to save a few who misuse alcohol by prohibiting the millions who used without abusing from properly and temperately exercising a natural right as old as the world itself, a procedure that, even if successful, would be as intelligent as that of the Chinese who utilized Bo-bo's accidental discovery by burning down their houses in order to roast pigs.

The Volstead law, notwithstanding all this, should be enforced. Once a serious attempt is made to enforce it, repeal is certain, for Congress, like our own state legislature, will be made to realize that it never had the approval of the majority of the people. But conferences that do not recognize this fact are a waste of time and government by rabblest will never be a success.

YOUR HEIGHT AND WEIGHT.

Years ago we were taught that the ideal height for a man was 5 feet 7 inches, and for a woman 5 feet 4 inches.

That is for an adult of 25 to 30 years of age.

It was said that the atmospheric pressure at this height was ideal for the human body.

What about it?

Well, most men would like to be at least 5 feet 10 inches, whilst for women 5 feet 4 inches is the most popular, as that is the height of the Venus de Medici.

What about it from a health standpoint?

Well, insurance companies prefer the heights of 5 feet 7 inches for men and 5 feet 4 inches for women, so that our early teachings must have been founded on facts.

It would appear that where a man or woman is a great deal taller, or a great deal shorter, than the above heights that they are not considered as good a risk. Of course, this does not tell the whole story, because the family history is more important even than the height.

Those companies have thousands of cases from which to draw their conclusions.

Of course, the height is important in relation to the weight. For instance, the man 5 feet 7 inches should weigh about 140 to 145 pounds at 25 years of age, and about ten pounds more than that at 50, to be considered a first class risk. For every inch over this add 5 pounds, and for every inch less subtract 5 pounds. If he weighs twenty pounds less or twenty pounds more he would not be as good a risk. In the one case, tuberculosis or some wasting condition; and in the other heart or kidney trouble. As a matter of fact to be a little, just a little lighter in weight as you grow older is really an asset, and the companies will tell you that those of lighter build stand the acute illnesses better than the heavy type.

Another thing they point out is that very old people are generally light in weight.

What lesson is this? That as you grow older that you do not permit yourself to get more than ten to fifteen pounds overweight at the most.

Simply cutting down on your food intake will keep your weight down. A little light exercise like walking will keep you nimble and light on your feet.

I haven't said anything about the two types of build—gracile and bulldog—I've just used the insurance companies' figures.

INSANE WOMAN CHAINED TO BED

Stricks From Lonely Farm
Frighten French Villagers.

It was on the day of Toussaint, the holiday which France consecrates to her dead, that the simple villagers of Change, near Le Mans, became aware that their placid village harbored tragedy. They were gathered at the cemetery, laying their immortelles reverentially on the mounds wherein their ancestors were buried, when cries of "Assassin!" sent the whole crowd scurrying away.

It was about Marie, the thirty-two-year-old idiot daughter of old man Bommet, the alcoholic, and the old woman, his wife, in whom harmless superstition had long ago become a morbid obsession, developed gradually through long days and nights of toll in the fields or in the cottage. For years the name of Bommet had been anathema in Change. For years nobody who feared God had dared stand beside the whitewashed walls of Bommet's cottage.

But on this most somber day of the year their footsteps were drawn irresistibly toward the old man's house. Murmuring uneasily, they crowded around. From within came unearthly howlings, cries of senseless, unmeaning despair. "Marie, c'est Marie!" they cried, and gladly moved away to let the gendarmes in.

Find Girl Chained to Bed.
Were Emile Zola alive he would undoubtedly have incorporated the strange story of the Bommet farm in a new Rougon-Macquart series. For sheer horror the tale of the Bommetts is rarely equaled these days. Marie was found chained to her bed by three great iron chains, uttering the terrible incoherencies of the insane. The old man was cursing drunkenly. The old woman prayed. And all this at sunset on a day when the village dead are supposed to rise from their graves. No wonder the simple townsfolk were afraid, and lugged their whimpering children away from the solitary farm, with its thatched roof and shabby windows ominously barred.

The police took Bommet out, foaming, cursing, to the jail at Le Mans. On the way he pulled one of the heavy bars from out the window, as easily as if it had been paper. His wife prayed. The gendarmes seized her to make her give up the keys with which were fastened the chains that bound Marie to the bed. She only shook her head and prayed more.

Unable to Talk for Years.
Finally they loosed the unfortunate girl by fling away the chains. She could say nothing coherent. She hasn't been able to talk for years. Sitting on the bed, she nodded her head and giggled pitifully, all the time rubbing the great bruises which the iron had made on her thighs. Thirty-two she was, they said, though from her white face and staring eyes it was impossible to determine.

Presently the mother talked a little—enough for the quite rural officials, who themselves were apparently a bit awed by this wretched household, to learn that Marie had been insane 12 years. Thirteen years ago she had a young cavalier, with whom she used to go to village fetes and danced with on holidays. It was an innocent affair. After a time Marie sent him away, telling her mother, with a peremptory shrug of her shoulders, that she was not yet ready to marry.

The young man left Change, asking Marie please to let him know if she would reconsider. Then he would come back, he told her, as would any young man in love. A year passed and Marie never let him know. He married.

It was a year later that he led a girl in Le Mans to the altar, murmured the mother, her eyes suddenly fixed on the stone floor. "She was one day out in the fields, sowing. Then the thing came. She wanted to run away, far, after some one."

Mother Tells of Fear.
Suddenly the old woman looked up fiercely, her small blue eyes gleaming. The persistent laughing monotone of Marie, nursing her scarred legs, seemed to inspire her to frenzy. Her voice became eager, like a child.

"She is not human, my Marie," whispered the old woman; "she is not one of us. She has visions. She knows what we do not. I might tell you. Always she wants to go away, away with her visions. When we put her to the bed and chained her it was to keep her from going to her friends above."

Escaped Twenty Times.
Marie had been chained to the bed three months. Before that 20 times she had escaped and 20 times she had been brought back by Bommet, found wandering barefoot in the fields. Twice she had been taken to the insane asylum at Le Mans, but because the Bommetts couldn't pay her board she had been sent back.

Once when Bommet wasn't drunk he had found the chains and the iron bars and put them in place. Then they had lifted Marie up to the bed, where for three solid months, according to her mother, she had wailed constantly, driving the rest of them to the border line of insanity.

Bommet now is in prison. Marie is on the eve of entering the asylum once more, this time for good. The old woman has for the present the cottage to herself. Very much so since credulous townsfolk steer clear of Felix Bommet's place. When they pass they pass with averted eyes.

Egypt May Seize Closed Tomb
By Telegram to The Freeman.
Cairo, Egypt, Feb. 15.—The Egyptian government may take over the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen as a result of the dispute with Howard Carter, chief of the Egyptologists working in the Valley of Kings, it was learned today.
Foreign tourists who flocked to Egypt to see the 3,000 year old tomb, are beseeching the government to arrange to have it re-opened to sight-seers.
Premier Zakhouri Pasha is personally studying the situation.

Leo Stack, Oil Man, Testified before the Senate Investigating Committee, that he was paid by Harry F. Sinclair for his interest in the Taptap Dome oil leases. Frank A. Vanderlip, New York financier, testified regarding his statement about reports that the late President Harding received an excessive price for the Marion (O.) Star, which he sold shortly before his death.

Goose Had Viking Gold
According to a Reuter dispatch from Bergen, a small boy, living at Rogaland, Norway, was recently the hero of an adventure which reads like a fairy story.
The youngster had driven a flock of geese to the village pond and was on the point of herding them back to his father's farm when he noticed a glint of gold in the beak of one of the birds. He caught the goose and removed from its crop a beautiful brooch of very curious design. This he took to the conservator of the Stavanger museum who pronounced it an unusually rare and beautiful specimen of the goldsmith's art, dating, he declared, from the era of the Vikings.

MILLIONS USE NATIONAL FORESTS FOR RECREATION
Report Shows That 6,000,000 Persons Visited Areas During the Year 1922.
The extent to which the national forests are being used for recreational purposes is shown by the fact that well over 6,000,000 persons visited the forests during 1922, says Col. W. B. Greeley, chief of the forest service, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, in his annual report. In 1917, the first year records of the number of persons visiting the national forests were compiled, slightly more than 3,000,000 visitors recorded. In 1922 this figure stood at over 6,000,000, thus showing a doubling in the number of visitors to the forests in six years. All indications point to a continued increase for the future, the report states.
"The use of the national forests for recreation is in all respects deserving of encouragement," the report says. "It means for no small part of the country's population a valuable opportunity and privilege. Properly provided for, recreational use will add valuable elements to our national life without seriously impairing the capacity of the forests to create wealth or render other public services."
One of the important duties of officers of the forest service, the report continues, is the protection of game animals and fish, two resources of the forests which are closely related to the use of forested areas as recreation grounds.
"The wild life resources of the national forests," it continues, "must be administered, fostered and utilized much as are the timber and forage resources. The cost of this activity in common with providing facilities for recreation and conserving the sources of water, will never be recovered in the form of commercial receipts, but is justified by the valuable public service which the national forests can thus contribute."
"More game refuges and fish-breeding streams and ponds should be set aside to provide for protected breeding to meet the rapidly increasing use of the forests for recreational purposes, careful consideration must be given to available food supplies for the desirable animals, and a system of regulated use devised that will prevent depletion of all wild life."

Armless Preacher Bags 2 Wild Turkeys in Day
Swinging a big wild young gobbler under his left armless sleeve and his gun under the right, Rev. Dr. Richard T. Vann, affectionately known as the "armless wonder," walked into the Union station with his dinner.
The noted Baptist preacher winged his gobbler near Hobgood. Prior to plucking his turkeyship from the skies the clergyman downed another, but he did not boast of his sportsmanship in bagging the first. Evidently he gun-shoed the bird. In getting two wild turkeys in one day he turned a feat in sportsmanship that any sharpshooter in the National Guard would have been glad to match. The former president of Meredith college, whose arms were lost when a boy, is a dead shot with a hammerless breach loader and a string tied to a trigger pulled by his teeth. It is doubtful if his match is on the earth.—Greensboro (N. C.) Daily News.

Airplane Beacon Light Illuminates Square Mile
Two airplanes made test flights at night recently in a portion of Mitchell Field, L. I., which was illuminated by an electric beacon of French manufacture which Maj. William N. Hensley, Jr., commandant of the field, characterized as the greatest single achievement in the promotion of night flying.
The beacon gives a diffused light of high power over an area of about a mile square. Houses in Hempstead, a mile and a half away, were clearly visible to observers at the flying field. The device itself is about the size of a hoghead and is of 5,000,000,000 candlepower. Its light is so bright as to make night baseball games possible. Representatives of the air mail service watched the test.

Heirs in Quarrel Over Gold in "Land Bank"
When the will of Mrs. Pharris was filed for probate, it related that her grandfather buried $35,000 on his farm in two caches, one in Atchison and the other near Superior, Nebraska.
Three heirs to the estate of Mrs. Mary Pharris of Atchison, Kas., sought to establish claims to $35,000 in gold near Superior, Neb., leaving a chart describing the location. Mrs. Pharris said in 1914 she located the treasure and exhumed $12,000 which she believed was her share. She said she left the remainder and buried the $23,000 at the end of Fifth street in Atchison.
Mrs. T. B. Smith, Superior, Neb.; Mrs. Estelle Polk and Mrs. Lillian Lindset, of Leavenworth, claimed the money. Mrs. Smith said Mrs. Polk had secretly withdrawn $3,800 from the Superior "land bank." Mrs. Polk denied getting the money.

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW
Druggists Say Ladies Are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.
Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.
Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also rings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

OLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action. It soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the most heating agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while it also goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to serious complications.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Ad.)

BANQUET NUMBER OF HOME COUNTY MAGAZINE.

The Home County Magazine for March, out this week, covers all the county society banquets which have been held the past month, with the printing of the names of the persons who attended their respective county dinners. "Under the White Tops" and "Random Notes of History" articles are continued. There is the usual page of memory sharpeners and a former Saugerties man writes about Northern Ulster. There is also an account of the reorganization of the Rensselaer County Society, which is now pretty well underway toward reviving. In the Albany county section attention is called to the activity of the Albany Society in New York. The Home County Magazine, now in close of its second year, is the only publication of its kind in the United States, devoting its columns to the visions of youth and the dreams of old men.

Flhaja Trio's First Program

A great deal of musical interest is being shown in the concerts to be given at the high school on the Friday evenings of February 23, March 14 and April 4, by the Flhaja Trio, which is the successor of the McClure Trio which won so much favor last year. In addition to the program to be given by the trio itself—Mrs. Florence Cuddeby, violinist; Jacob Mollitt, cellist; Harry P. Dodge, pianist and leader—the trio will present at least two soloists already popular with Kingston musical audiences. Mr. House, tenor, and Mr. Tuckerman, baritone, both of whom have sung at Mendelssohn Club concerts to the delight of those large audiences. The numbers to be played by the trio at the first concert are:

Trio II, B-flat Mozart
Allegro
Larghetto
Andante con moto (From Trio Op. 100) Schubert
Presto and Andante (Trio in C Minor, Op. 101) Brahms
Gypsy Rondo (Trio No. 1) Haydn

The full program, including vocal solos, will appear in The Freeman shortly. At the other two concerts a Beethoven Trio and another Mozart Trio as well as the Godard Trio so greatly enjoyed last year, will be played.

BELTLESS MODE NOW LEADS TO THE BALLROOM.

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

The beltless frock is still unusual enough not to pass altogether unnoticed even in a crowd of lovely dresses. The beltless suit has so completely ousted other varieties that it has almost become the exception to find a suit with a belt, although many of the newest have a definite, one might even say exaggerated waistline. Such suits are typically French and play at being masculine, often developed of men's suiting and worn with either a waistcoat or a blouse which has that effect.

The beltless mode having won recognition, it is not to be wondered at that we find its path leading into the ballroom. Many of the loveliest beaded dresses, some velvets in the new printed effects, in fact in almost all materials, are made up on the straight line. How surprising that a mere bit of ribbon—a string belt we call it—can make such a differ-

HARVARD SEMINARY STRIKE CAUSES PRESIDENT TO RESIGN

Lutheran Synod May Investigate—Trouble Arose Over One Student.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Albany, Feb. 14.—Following a long session, the board of trustees of Harwick Seminary, a Lutheran college near Cooperstown, N. Y., yesterday voted to accept the resignations of Dr. M. G. L. Reitz, president, and Professor John H. Dudge, principal of the seminary.

The resignations are the result of the recent "tarring" by molasses and feathers, of Donald Karg, 16, of Dansville, N. Y., a student at the seminary.

The trustees admitted the continuance of the seminary, more than 100 years old, has been in the balance since last Friday when the 88 students, 35 of them girls, went on strike demanding that Dr. Reitz quit as president.

Dr. Reitz had insisted that Karg remain a student at the institution. Professor Dudge sided with the students in opposing this move, and the strike followed.

The trustees refused to discuss the incidents which led up to the "tarring" of Karg.

It was reported the entire affair may be investigated by the New York State Lutheran Synod.

HOW SENATE HOUSE GOT ITS COPPER ROOF.

They are telling around the capitol at Albany an interesting story in which Governor Smith and Judge Clearwater are participants. The judge as generally is known, made a collection of early American silver which he presented to the Metropolitan Museum of Art; also he is and long has been the president of the old Senate House Association of Kingston, in which he takes great interest. For several years he endeavored to induce the state to replace the old and leaky shingle roof upon that venerable building with a modern copper roof, writing year after year to the superintendent of public buildings asking that this be done. Last summer in going over the estimates for repairs to the various buildings owned by the state, the superintendent said to the governor:

"Your friend, Judge Clearwater, has been persistent in asking to have a copper roof placed upon the old Senate House at Kingston. What do you think of it?"

"A copper roof," said Governor Al. "Judge Clearwater wants a copper roof! Give it to him at once, and thank your stars that he did not ask for a silver roof."

Thus it is that the Senate House has a fine, modern, handsome copper roof.

Said a Bystander.

"This is a wagon," announced a charlatan doing blindfold stunts at a county fair. "I merely touched it. What tells me it is a wagon?" "The tongue,"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Many Bachelors in U. S.

The United States has more bachelors than any country in the world, the census bureau putting the figures at 13,000,000.

ence in the general effect of the silhouette which when all is said and done, retains its same straight line. By omitting a belt, making the frock longer, and changing the neckline from a curve to a sharp angle, we achieve distinction, which is what we are all aiming for just now.

Among the loveliest evening frocks, tulle must not be omitted, for while not as elegant in effect or as costly as other materials, it nevertheless can be reckoned on to charm the eye, especially since it is a comparatively short time since tulle has reappeared at social functions. It is, unlike most materials, strictly confined to night life. One may wear chiffons and even laces to luncheon, but not tulle. In its most modern expression, it is ruffled to the knee or sometimes above. Ruffles known as Spanish, the type which is very wide and either higher at back or side, appear again, for just now skirts are in tiers, which is not as lugubrious as it sounds. Test Yourself for Logical Thought

Are you a logical thinker?

Try this test and see if you can make the correct selection of words. You have three minutes in which to work.

Directions: Below are words in big letters. Each one is followed by a list of other words in small letters. Look at the example. The first word in big letters is "dog." What two things in the list following is a dog never without? These two words are underlined. In each of the ten groups of words put lines under the two words which the word in large letters at the head of the group is never without. Do not underscore more than two words in any one group. Example: DOG: ears, collar, nose.

1. CAT: fur, house, milk, claws.
2. TREE: apples, branches, acorns, roots, flowers.
3. SCHOOL: blackboard, teacher, window, pen, bell, schoolhouse, pupils.
4. STORE: counter, clerk, cash register, advertisements, goods, boxes, stoves.
5. SPELLING: book, writing, pencil, words, margin, letters.
6. BUILDING: windows, wood, chimney, wall, shingle roof, stairs, shed.
7. DEBT: mortgage, creditor, money, lawyer, collector, debtor, bankrupt.
8. SICKNESS: lameness, death, weakness, hospital, nurse, discomfort, doctor.
9. GOVERNMENT: capital, consul, navy, freedom, king, senate, cannon, tax.
10. FRIENDSHIP: adoration, liking, lover, obedience, imitation, help, fulness, worship, girl.

How many did you do correctly?

Answers: 1. fur, claws; 2. branches, roots; 3. teachers, pupils; 4. clerk, goods; 5. words, letters; 6. walls, roof; 7. creditor, debtor; 8. weakness, discomfort; 9. capital, tax; 10. liking, helpfulness.

Tries Kellogg's Bran—restores health after 12 years of intense suffering

Mr. Firth writes that he suffered for 12 years from constipation and his friend for 10 years—a total of 22 years' suffering permanently relieved by Kellogg's Bran, soaked and krumbled.

Gentlemen: For 12 years I had been troubled with indigestion caused mostly by constipation. Until about a year ago I would suffer from 4 to 20 weeks at a time.

I happened to see your Krumbled Bran in a store, purchased a package and got almost immediate relief. I am still eating the Krumbled Bran every day. The most wonderful results obtained with your Krumbled Bran I will now relate. A gentleman who has been taking medicine for about 10 years for constipation could not find anything to give him relief. Three weeks ago I advised him to try Krumbled Bran, as I had told him what wonderful results I had gotten from it. The gentleman in question purchased a box and he told me that for the first time in ten years he is regular without taking medicine.

Yours for success, William Firth, Jr., 56 Volan St., Merchantville, N. J.

Eaten regularly, Kellogg's Bran is guaranteed to relieve the most chronic case of constipation, or your grocer returns your money. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. The flavor is delicious. Try it in the recipes on every package. Made in Battle Creek. Sold by all grocers.

Good Taste in a Woman's Clothes

Will Be Subject of Meeting for Women in Kingston on February 19—All Women Invited.

The county wide clothing meeting under the auspices of the Ulster County Home Bureau, which has been scheduled for February 19th is promising to be extremely interesting both to women who buy their clothing ready made, those who have them made, and those who make them themselves. Miss Doris Schumaker, clothing specialist from Cornell University, will be the speaker.

Miss Schumaker states that the object of the lecture is as follows: To establish a standard of what constitutes a well dressed woman as a basis for distinguishing between conflicting opinions of what constitutes good taste in dress.

To think in terms of each garment in relation to the other garment with which it is to be worn so that a unit or costume is formed when those garments are worn together.

To suggest a plan for buying any new garments needed so that they will fit in with older garments of the wardrobe thereby building up suitable and becoming costumes.

She will take up the following points:

Reasons for wearing clothes.

The part fashion plays in choosing clothes.

Standard for judging beautiful clothes.

Difference between fashionable and beautiful clothes.

Characteristics of a well dressed woman.

Value or advantage of being well dressed.

Relation of one article or garment to others with which it is to be worn in order to form a unit of a costume.

Importance of properly fitting corset and undergarments for health and comfort and as a basis for being well dressed.

Demonstration of best possible ways for solving problems of being well dressed through using garments brought by women and borrowed from local stores.

Present a workable plan for becoming better dressed.

The Secret In Your Hands

IT is said that a woman can keep a secret—with a sufficient number of others to help her. Be that as it may—women have a secret—in their hands—which too many do not keep.

Many a woman's hands reveal that she is thoughtless—that she uses common household soap which irritates the hands and makes them red, rough and coarse.

To avoid this, thinking women, who choose their household soap as carefully as they do their toilet soap, insist on Kirkman's Soap. For Kirkman's is as harmless to the hands as is the most exquisite toilet soap.

KIRKMAN'S Soap, being free from irritating lye, will not harm the hands or the most delicate fabrics. It is made of the purest materials.

For all household purposes Kirkman's is a most thorough cleanser. For the sake of your hands insist upon Kirkman's Soap.

ONE CENT A WORD ADVS. BRING RESULTS

Offers Site for Camp to Scouts

12 Prince street, Kingston, N. Y., February 14, 1924.

Mr. G. Henry Messing,
Ulster Co. Scout Executive,
442 Broadway,
Klugeon, New York

Dear Sir:

My son attended the annual dinner and campfire of the Boy Scouts at the Elks' Club on February 12, and came home so enthusiastic over the proceedings that we held there, that I feel as though I would like to help in getting a permanent camp started.

I therefore offer as my willing donation to the Scout organization fifty acres, and more if necessary, of suitable camping country.

This property is situated on what is known as "Turkey Hill" and lies between four and five miles from Kingston so making it convenient for the greater part of the country.

Yours very truly,
STEPHEN B. FISHER.

Managers Mack and Dunn Lose Out on Ball Stars

Connie Mack of the Athletics and Jack Dunn of the Orioles should have been the same handkerchief. Mack lost $100,000 in one shot last summer and never sold a word. He could have sold Wild Matthews for that sum and didn't. After the season every club in both major leagues passed up Mack at the value price and Mack passed him along to Milwaukee in the deal for Al Simmons. Jack Dunn refused $125,000 for Joe Moley last spring. Four clubs were after the shortstop at that time. Now Dunn seems unable to dispose of Joe at a greatly reduced price.

Counting by Tens.

Our system of counting by tens started ages ago when men counted on their fingers. Because they had ten fingers, a numbering on their hands made a unit of counting, and that was the beginning of the decimal system. A count on their fingers and toes resulted in twenty and thus the checking off of things by scores began.

It's a Fact.

It's easier to make enemies than friends, but it is easier to get rid of friends than it is to get rid of enemies.

Rosendale, Feb. 15.—"Accusings speak louder than words," and we would weigh these words of ours by the large gathering of men and women, well known to professional and business life who were present at the funeral of Dr. Cornelius Van Dyke Husbrouck on February 3, in All Saints' Episcopal Church, Rosendale. His health gave way several years ago, improving at times and again relapsing. The service was conducted by the rector, the Rev. James G. Cameron, assisted by the Rev. J. Clarke Agnew of High Falls. The rector in his able address mentioned his faithfulness to every trust, he gave his life in loving service to those in sickness and distress. Mrs. Joseph Mooney presided at the organ and sang with much feeling a favorite hymn of the doctor, "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere." The choir sang "Asleep in Jesus" and "Now the Laborer's Task is Over." His former patients had not forgotten him and many touching and tender tributes were paid him. Beautiful floral offerings as loving mementoes of their former association and friendship were sent by the Ulster County Medical Society, Benedictine staff, Ulster County American Red Cross, Kingston Lodge, No. 10, F. & A. M., Mt. Horsh Chapter, and a beautiful Maltese Cross, emblem of the Knights Templar, a mound of roses from the teachers, Miss White and Miss Anderson, the vestry and Women's Auxiliary and many beautiful floral gifts from relatives and friends from far and near. Captain Gilbert D. Cornelius died Wednesday morning at his home in Napanoch, following an illness of several years. Captain Cornelius came to Ellenville when a boy and attended school at Ellenville—the old Post Academy—and when the call came for men to defend the Union was among the first to answer, enlisting in Company E, Old Twentieth, which marched from Kingston, Oct. 28, 1861, being attached to Wadsworth's Brigade, McDowell's Division. He entered the service with the rank of sergeant, but was promoted to first lieutenant in January 1862, and to captain in September that year. He was in the fierce conflict of the second battle of Bull Run, August 30, 1862, when Captain Cornelius was mortally wounded as he seized the falling colors, and in which engagement, Lieut. H. H. Terwilliger, still living in Ellenville, was wounded so severely that his recovery was noted as a remarkable fact in the annals of Civil War surgery. After leaving the service Captain Cornelius was for some time with the Wanamaker store in Philadelphia and during that time married Miss Hannah Harmer of Philadelphia. After leaving Philadelphia he removed to Homewick (now Spring Glen) where he lived for some five years, during which time, and practically till the close of the D. & H. canal he engaged in boating. For several terms thereafter he served the village of Ellenville as its faithful and efficient street commissioner, and for nearly twenty years conducted the grocery at the Five Points, formerly the Low store, selling his business about four years ago. Since then, with the exception of one winter, he and Mrs. Cornelius have made their home with their son, E. H. Cornelius, in the latter's house at Napanoch. For many years Captain Cornelius had been a faithful member of Ward Post, G. A. R., he was also a charter member of Napanoch Tribe I. O. R. M. Besides his wife, he leaves four children: Arthur M. Cornelius and Mary, wife of Frank Bunting, both of Philadelphia; E. H. Cornelius, who for several years has conducted a restaurant in Ellenville and Ada W., wife of Fred Simpson of Accord. Funeral services from St. John's Episcopal Church, Saturday afternoon at 1:30, conducted by the Rev. H. P. Robinson.

Charges Over Alaska Coal

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, Feb. 15.—A new tempest over public lands, similar in many respects to that now raging over the government's oil leases, was brewing in Washington today.

Grave charges concerning the handling of the vast Alaskan coal lands by Secretary of the Navy Denby and ex-Secretary of the Interior Fall were laid before President Coolidge by John E. Ballaine, builder of the original Alaskan railroad and foremost champion of Alaskan conservation.

Ballaine's charges were contained in a letter sent President Coolidge and in support of them he cited facts and figures taken from the files of the navy and interior departments. Briefly summarized they are:

1. Secretary of the Interior Fall and Secretary of the Navy Denby began negotiations as early as July 1921 for the transfer of the naval coal reserve in the Matanuska fields from the navy to the interior department and for leasing that reserve for a period of fifty years. The negotiations and the terms agreed upon between the two secretaries in this coal reserve ran along lines parallel with the terms concerning Teapot Dome.

2. No lease for the Matanuska coal reserve was executed. But the net result was that naval mining operations in the Matanuska were transferred by Denby to the interior department and abruptly closed in May, 1922, at a time when the navy had a mine developed and equipped in Chickaloon, ready to produce 250 tons a day, with 600,000 tons of coal blocked out in that mine with 2,500,000 tons of the same quality in sight by diamond drilling in the Coal Creek district.

Admiral J. K. Robinson, chief of the navy bureau of engineers, and Admiral E. W. Eberle, chief of naval operations, recommended that Matanuska coal, under no circumstances be used by naval vessels, despite the findings of a naval board this coal was far superior to Pocahontas coal, present naval standard for fuel efficiency.

Ballaine, in his letter refers to a conversation with President Coolidge in which the president stated "I have been advised by the navy department that Matanuska coal is not suitable for naval use."

In refutation of this "misinformation" Ballaine cited the official results of three tests undertaken by the naval board which show Matanuska coal to be superior under the conditions of the test to the Pocahontas coal used.

"Notwithstanding the favorable results of the Matanuska tests," Ballaine informed the president, "pronounced excellent by the board, with a boiler rating above Pocahontas by 15 per cent (the) commander of the Pacific fleet, Admiral E. W. Eberle, who had no part in the tests, makes an official recommendation against the use of Matanuska coal by the navy."

Admiral Robinson endorses the recommendation of Admiral Eberle and "recommends that neither the Bering river nor the Matanuska coal be used by naval vessels under any circumstances. It is believed that the tests of these coals are conclusive evidence of their unsuitability for naval use."

Ballaine stated he later took Senator Lenroot, Republican, of Wisconsin, to the navy department with him and the senator asked Robinson directly whether there was anything in the official reports on which he based his report that the coal was unsuitable to which Robinson replied:

"Nothing as to quality. Matanuska coal is good coal. My statement that it is unsuitable applies to its cost."

Accompanying the letter dealing with the coal reserve, Ballaine submitted to the president a printed document reviewing the whole Alaskan conservation-exploitation fight from 1902 to the present time. In this document Ballaine charged the Morgan-Guggenheim combine with being behind every move to exploit that rich territory.

Ballaine commented on the speech made by the late President Harding in Seattle on July 27, 1923, just after returning from Alaska, in which Harding referred to the $1,000,000 town built by the navy in 1920 in the Alaska coal fields as "a monument to folly." This town represented an undertaking to develop a supply of coal in the Matanuska district for naval use.

Ballaine stated that Matanuska coal could be delivered to any Pacific coast port for $9.50 a ton, as against official navy statements that Pocahontas coal "costs the navy an average of $11 per ton."

"Most of the money expended out of that million dollars," Ballaine asserted, "was for erecting groups of magnificent buildings, a hotel, gymnasium and a tennis court, before a single new test hole had been sunk, aside from some tunnelling. And as afterward shown, the 'monument to folly' was built seven miles from the localities where the navy coal proved to be."

"The 'monument to folly' is one of the many in a chain of similar monuments which could not be understood by the president and the other officials but are clearly explained now in the light of recently discovered documentary proof of collusion between the Alaskan engineering commission and the Morgan-Guggenheim Alaska Steamship Company."

Varsity Sports at Ohio State Becoming Popular

In the event that the proposed swimming team at Ohio State becomes a reality the natators will round out an even dozen varsity sports at the Columbus institution. These sports have attracted more than 1,000 men. The eleven teams long since recognized as part of the physical education and intercollegiate programs at Ohio State are football, basketball, baseball, cross country, track, gymnastics, fencing, wrestling, soccer, golf and rifle shooting.

Including freshman and varsity teams, but not other class or intramural teams, about 300 men turned out for football, 120 for basketball, 80 for baseball, 200 for cross country, 200 for track, 50 for gymnastics, 60 for fencing, 40 for wrestling, 20 for soccer, 20 for golf and 40 for the rifle team.

Eddie Collins Is Best "Waiter Out" in League

Among other records accredited to Eddie Collins, veteran second baseman of the White Sox, umpires Billy Evans and Clarence Rowland of the Ban Johnson circuit have awarded him the honors for running up the batting count to "two and three" more times than any other player in the major leagues.

And still the batting-records show that Collins fanned but eight times in 145 games last season.

Rowland recalled the surest indication of a tight place when Collins is at the plate—he reaches for the wad of gum on the button of his cap.

As a consistent waiter-out who rarely fails to deliver on the third swing, Collins is unrivaled in the major leagues, Evans declares.

"Babe Ruth" Who Is She? Queries London

The London Observer reprints from the New York Independent a list of the "outstanding personalities for 1924," and makes the following comment:

Vanderlip Says He Did Service

these rumors should be verified to clear the late president's name.

"You thought it your duty to give publicity?"

"I thought it my patriotic duty. It was heard in all newspaper offices. I know it was a hard thing to do."

"You can give the committee no definite information?"

"No, I just heard these rumors. I don't even know the price the paper sold for. The current rumors were, it was sold for $550,000, that it was $600 a share. I have no information as to the value of the paper."

"I understood the terms included payment of $100,000 a year to Mr. Harding as a contributing editor, the payment to be made to the widow in event of his death."

"Do you know anything about the income of the paper?"

"I heard $10,000 and in one year that it was $69,000."

"Have you no other information?"

"I have no accurate information for my statement. I heard the rumors."

Vanderlip said, in explaining his speech that he had no information that anyone in the oil business had contributed to the purchase of the property, although it was clearly "implied" in the rumors he heard that the money came from some unexplained source.

"I thought," he continued, "by bringing it out in public you gentlemen could run down these rumors."

"You thought," said Lenroot, "that it was your public duty to broadcast these rumors, which if not true would be slander on the late president?"

"I thought it my duty to broadcast these rumors."

"Do you think you should assist in spreading these rumors?"

"I hoped it would do just what it has done—broadcast these rumors to wide public circulation. There are rumors current that are making Reds faster than any Soviet propaganda. I've had much experience with gossip and rumors and I've learned to draw a distinction between gossip and rumors."

"Do you mean to say you got these rumors from responsible men?"

"I have never heard any one discuss these rumors who purported to know the facts about them. I wanted to clear the memory of the late president."

Regarding his statement that Fall was let go because three was fear he would "peach," Vanderlip said: "That was my own personal inference."

"Did you know this committee was advised by counsel that he might be given immunity if he testified under duress?"

"I had heard that."

"Did you give voice to idle rumor after what the committee did in Fall's case?"

"I did not know counsel had advised he couldn't be forced to testify."

"Have you ever heard of a case where a man was forced to testify under duress when he claimed immunity?"

"That was my impression."

"You think it was fair inference to draw?" demanded Lenroot, pounding the table, "when you knew that Fall had declined to testify on advice of counsel?"

"I did not know Fall had refused to testify," the witness said.

"You charged the senate and this committee with neglect of duty without asking legal advice or consulting the committee?"

"If you tell me you had legal advice, I'll say it was right you did not go on if you had no other way to go about it."

"Would you make a speech of that sort without informing yourself of the facts?" Lenroot asked.

"I was only referring to rumors," said Vanderlip.

"Would you now say that the committee had not done its full duty in its conduct toward Mr. Fall?"

"If you tell me the committee had no power to go on with its questioning of Mr. Fall on grounds that he might incriminate himself, I would say that was ample reason for not continuing unless you have some other way to make him testify," said Vanderlip.

"By granting Fall complete immunity?" asked Lenroot.

"No, by passing legislation to make him testify," said Vanderlip.

"You suggest passing legislation violating the constitution?"

"You do it sometimes," replied Vanderlip, "and I think it could be done."

"You believe you were doing your patriotic duty by making a statement that has not an iota of truth in it?" asked Lenroot.

"I was merely stating certain rumors," replied Vanderlip.

"You weren't very careful about your statements, were you?"

"I am very careful about my statements. I was a journalist and learned to be careful."

"There is no way for the senate to force a man to testify if he claims constitutional immunity," said Lenroot.

"In that case, I think it was proper that you did not go on."

"You said you wanted to clear the name of the late president but what about the committee?" asked Senator Adams, Democrat of Colorado.

Vanderlip said he didn't think this came "within the jurisdiction of the committee."

"But you gave currency to these rumors, nevertheless?"

"Not currency to them, merely stating the rumors."

"You put the rumors above gossip?"

"Yes, I heard them from a dozen people. It was substantial rumor."

"Having taken this stand do you care to make known the people who told you about the rumors?"

"There are so many. I don't want to involve these people who did not purport to know the facts. You clearly have opened the road to ascertain the facts and kill the scandal. I understand men who bought the paper are here. I believe statement of the facts will end the scandal."

"Did you say anything in reproach about a member of the committee?"

"I think I said one member was 'fantastically high minded'."

"That was in the nature of a reproach?"

"Oh, no, I thought this investigation required force and character."

"Knowing all the facts what do you now think of this committee's action toward Fall?" asked Senator Adams.

"Your course was the only possible course."

Washington, Feb. 15.—All barriers in the senate's naval oil reserve leasing investigation were smashed down today.

Flooded for weeks with persistent reports of a vast "slush" fund sent from New York "to buy off high government officials," senate oil investigators abandoned all secrecy and came out into the open to run the rumors to the ground.

For days the committee has been working quietly and a "tip" that Wall Street financiers sent a million dollars to a Washington bank to be used in making up stock gambling losses by federal officers. Expert accountants have been going over books of brokers of Washington, New York and Cleveland.

Told by the accountants, however, that the brokers "have succeeded generally in covering up deals connecting government officers," the committee decided to go to the source of the rumors and summoned several New York financiers.

Frank A. Vanderlip, assistant secretary of the treasury under President McKinley, and former president of the National City Bank of New York, who cast insinuations upon the late President Harding in connection with the sale of the Marlon Star, was the first of the financiers subpoenaed. Unable to hear him at yesterday's sensational session, the committee instructed Vanderlip to be ready to explain his charges and tell whether they were founded merely on "gossip."

Edward B. McLean, Washington publisher, and intimate with many high officials of the Harding administration, also was under a summons. In addition to asking him about the "slush" fund, the committee wanted McLean to produce the checks for $100,000 which he said he gave ex-Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall, who returned them uncashed. Charges of a grave character have been laid before the committee in connection with these checks.

Others who will be asked to appear include Otto Kahn, New York financier; Harry Payne Whitney, race horse owner and a member of the syndicate which handled stock of the Mammoth Oil Company, a Sinclair subsidiary controlling Teapot Dome; Benjamin F. Yoakum, of the Cotton Belt Lines Railroad; officials of New York and Washington banks. These men, however, were said by committee men not to be involved actually in the "slush fund" operations, which were declared to have been directed for the financiers and federal officials by a man who occupied enviable connections with the Harding administration.

E. L. Doheny also may be recalled. Harry F. Sinclair, for whom a subpoena will be waiting when he arrives in New York from Paris, will be questioned about the fund.

Although not in connection with the "slush money" committee members said they probably would want to question Col. Robert W. Stewart of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, to which it has been testified, Sinclair paid $1,000,000 for claims on Teapot Dome.

Briefly the story of the "slush fund" as related privately to members of the committee is this:

High government officials, touching many that the lease scandal has not already smeared with oil, made "killings" on the stock market. In steel about the time the steel rates in the last tariff act were being enacted. The money thus made, they plunged in stock of an independent oil company, at whose head were said to be relatives of government officers, and lost all the steel profits and thousands besides.

To cover these losses, certain New York financiers and oil men interested in securing special favors from the government, pooled a million dollar fund and shipped it to a local bank, directing that the money be distributed as a "token of gratitude."

Lately the man who handled the distribution was called upon by the financiers to give an accounting as to where the money went. He could not give a satisfactory accounting of $600,000.

This fact is said to have incensed the financiers and during an informal discussion in the bankers' club in New York one of the members of the "slush fund" syndicate minced no words in calling down wrath upon this man.

It was only shortly after this, the committee has been informed, that Vanderlip spoke to the Rotary Club meeting in Ossining, N. Y., demanding a thorough house cleaning in governmental circles, and intimating that the senate committee halted questioning of Fall for fear that he would "peach."

For a second time since the Teapot Dome scandal reached the sensational point, the senate and President Coolidge were at bitter odds today. Elated at Coolidge's withdrawal of Silas N. Strawn, as one of the special counsel, Democratic members of the committee, however, demanded that the chief executive also withdraw Allee Pomerene, to whom serious opposition which may prevent confirmation, has developed.

"You're looking younger than ever"

Of course that's the proper greeting between old friends long separated. But it's true as well as courteous in the case of a woman who, by using laundry service, has kept her face free of the wrinkles that come with wash tub work and worry. "Rough Dry," a truly economical laundry service which washes and dries everything and irons flat work, has helped many a woman preserve that "younger than ever" look.

TO THE TOWN BOARD OF THE TOWN OF WOODSTOCK.

GENTLEMEN:

On assuming the duties of Supervisor and investigating financial conditions of the town, I found a situation which I consider should be brought immediately to your attention and to the attention of the taxpayers thereof, so that no misapprehension may arise in the future concerning the books of the town and there has been paid over to me the following balances:

General fund.....$245.60

Highway fund.....13.30

Bridge fund.....1.00

Machinery fund.....15.36

Unexpended fund.....5.25

County fund.....none

School fund.....none

County road fund.....$18.50

It will therefore be observed that the town is without funds until the taxes are collected for the current year, which by the law, are all obligated with the exception of the amounts raised for highway purposes.

The worst of the situation, however, is that there are several bills which remain unpaid which are as follows:

General Road Machinery Co., $1,012.00

United Construction Co., 1,532.25

Kingston Trust Co., certificate of indebtedness, and interest.....1,000.00

15.61

No provision has been made for the payment of these claims, although they were incurred during 1923, and should have been arranged for in the present tax levy.

It will therefore be observed that if these claims are paid, it will entail a very great additional tax burden in the year 1924.

Fine Exhibit of High School

The exhibit of tools made by students at the Kingston high school and displayed in the Johnson hardware store window on the Strand is attracting much favorable attention. The tools consisting of hammers, screw drivers and other articles are fastened on a bulletin board, and the work reflects great credit on the young folks. There are also a number of blue prints accompanying the exhibit.

Announces the Arrival of the MID-WINTER WHITE GOODS SALE

Begins Feb. 11th. Ends Feb. 16th.

White goods sales are years old. They were first organized when people did not own automobiles and our patrons were shut in a great part of the winter.

At that time, they purchased white materials and made up their underwear, outer clothing, table and bed wear.

Now, with the advent of the automobile, hundreds of people even far out in the country, trade at our store daily. People not only buy in the White Goods Sale particularly for dress-making and for the making of bed and table linens, but they also buy the finished product.

And so we open today with a wonderful week of White with the following stocks represented:

League Game Here Saturday

Saturday evening, at the local armory, the local standing Greenpoint team of the Metropolitan League will supply the opposition. This is the first Saturday evening game to be staged at the local armory court in the Metropolitan League this season. A win over the Greenpoint squad will do much toward helping the Kingston team in the knockout for the second half honors.

In all probability Morgenweck will use the same team that performed here successfully Wednesday night against the Trenton outfit. In the visitors' lineup is a player well known to local fandom, Harry Riccarda, who played with the Kingston combination in the early part of the season. The initial dancing will be held following the contest.

CREATION OF STATE POWER AUTHORITY ASSURED

By Telegram to The Freeman. Albany, Feb. 15. There will be a conference the first of next week between Governor Smith and Speaker Michoud on the Democratic waterpower bill. The Republicans already have agreed to create a State Power Authority, as recommended by the governor, to make a survey of the state's waterpower resources and report back to the Legislature of 1925. Senator Rabenold, New York Democrat, is expected to sponsor the governor's bill in the upper house.

POUGHKEEPSIE RED SOX SIGNED FOUR PLAYERS

The Red Sox managers announced Wednesday that Tom McCombs, Neil Dewey, Tom McCarthy and Eddie Phalen had been signed for the season. All of these players with the exception of Phalen were members of Schatz's club last year. This is the first positive statement that the Red Sox managers have made regarding their lineup. Fred Dahl still remains free and unless the Kingston fielder signs up with some outfit soon he will be the center of some discussion and speculation. Poughkeepsie Eagle-News.

OSCAR A POLICE CHIEF; HONORARY RANK RESTORED.

The New York Times says: Police department honors have been conferred upon two more well known citizens by Commissioner Richard E. Enright, it was learned last night. Although the appointments were made more than a month ago, the news did not escape headquarters until late yesterday. Oscar Tschirky of the Waldorf, for many years its chef and later its maitre-de hotel, was made an honorary chief as was Benjamin Gagli, a tenor of the Metropolitan Opera. Although no confirmation of two appointments could be had at headquarters, officials at the Waldorf said it had taken place about January 10, when a dinner was given at the Waldorf to celebrate the sixth year of Enright's commissionership. At this dinner Oscar was presented with a gold badge in recognition of his service to the police, to the chiefs at the International Police Conference and to distinguished guests visiting this city.

WHO WANTS TO BUY COPY OF THE ULSTER GAZETTE

City Clerk Styles today received his first communication regarding an Ulster County Gazette containing an account of Washington's funeral. This was the first communication on that subject this year, but there will be others.

John R. Vaughan of Haydenville, Mass., is the latest possessor of a copy of that famous paper bearing the date of January 4, 1800, and wrote the city clerk asking if the city desired to purchase it. He enclosed a stamped envelope for reply, usually writers on the subject forget that courtesy.

The Freeman receives a query every few days from some one who has a copy of one of the reproductions of that famous paper and thinks it is an original. There are at the most but one or two genuine copies in existence.

The horn beetle easily lifts twenty times its own weight. Had humans proportionate strength we might see a young girl going home from her music lesson carrying a grand piano under her arm.

Careless Shampooing Spoils The Hair

Soap should be used very carefully if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Multisided coconut oil shampoo, which is pure and greaseless, and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonfuls is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage.

You can get Multisided coconut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.
